Board's Work

By Carl Johnson, President
It is January as I write and as many do this time of the year it is a time to reflect on last year and look forward to this year. Last year was a good year for your Council. Some of the highlights that I remember from last year include the many awards that were awarded to Council members at the FFF Conclave in Whitefish (see article on awards in this newsletter for specifics), the stocking of Chopaka Lake where Jerry McBride spent many hours putting this together (Thanks Jerry), and the Council's Conclave last

May. So many Council members from across Washington worked many long hours to make this event come together. I would like to thank everyone that helped make that event the success that it was. I look forward to 2009 and the promise it holds. This year the Council is holding our Fly Fishing Fair in Ellensburg on May 1st and 2nd. In July, the FFF Conclave will be in Loveland, Colorado, proposed new home for the FFF. I am looking forward to both of these events. The Fly Fishing Fair, in addition to being wonderful event, is the Council's main source of funds. Currently we receive no money from the FFF, so I encourage all of you to put May 1st and 2nd on your calendar and plan to be in Ellensburg. As you can imagine it takes a lot of people to successfully put on an event like this. If you would like to volunteer to help make the Fly fishing Fair a success, please contact any Council Board member.

Nominations for WSC Board

This year the term of 4 of our members will expire, Carl Johnson, President; Kevin Ryan, VP Conservation; David Williams, VP Membership; and Sue Morrison, Director at Large. Kevin has been called back into active service with the State of Washington is unable to effectively split his time, so he is not going to run for reelection. David, who has taken over as editor of Covering the Drift, wants to give up the Membership position so we are looking for VP of Conservation and a VP of Membership in addition to a few open spots as Director at Large. If you know of anyone who would be interested in joining the Board, please contact any board member.

The Board meets four times a year. The February meeting is in Bellevue on Saturday after The Fly Fishing Show. The May meeting coincides with the Fly Fishing Fair in Ellensburg. We also meet in July and November in Ellensburg. The choice to meet in Ellensburg is not random. We meet at the Rodeo City Barbecue, just a few blocks south of the spot marking the geographic center of the state. Many of the board members come a day early or stay a day late to fish the Yakima or other local water. Great excuse to fish while helping the sport we all love.

Finally, as I think about last year and look toward 2009 I think about what I enjoy so much about being President of this great Council. The easiest and best part of the job is the people that I have met. I've met so many people, both with the Council and around the FFF. It is the people that have made the hard work worth it. I hope that everyone has a great 2009, has many memories of wonderful fishing trips and of course, comes to the Fly fishing Fair in May.

FFF Awards

Last year the WSC was well represented at the annual awards banquet receiving five prestigious national awards at Whitefish, Montana.

The Puget Sound Flyfishers received the McKenzie Cup. The Evergreen Fly Fishing Club received the Conservation Award. The Lew Jewett Memorial Life Award, which includes a FFF life membership, was awarded to John Newbury and Bill Redman. Vern Jeremica received the 2008 Council Award of Excellence. Congratulations and thank you for all that you have done for fly fishing.

It's not too soon to start thinking about 2009 nominations. All nominations for all national awards should be received by the FFF by April 1, the exception being the conservation award which must be sent to the conservation committee by February 28. Information on FFF awards including the criteria for each award and nomination forms can be found at www.fedflyfishers.org/ under the awards tab. To nominate a club or individual and gain the council's support for the nomination, we need the nomination form by mid-March. If you have any questions or want to submit a nomination, please contact Carl Johnson.

The McKenzie Cup Award

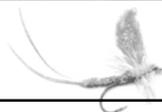

By Mike Clancy

The McKenzie Cup award is presented annually to the FFF club that has made the most outstanding contribution on behalf of the FFF. This year the Puget Sound Flyfishers of Tacoma, Washington was awarded the McKenzie Cup for 2008.

The Puget Sound Flyfishers celebrated its 50th anniversary in 2006 and has a rich history of education, conservation and promoting fly fishing in Tacoma and surrounding areas. Over the years, the club has been active in supporting conservation projects on the Olympic Peninsula including Hood Canal and the South Sound areas.

The club is an active member of the Washington State Council of the FFF and has supported the FFF at the national level from its very beginning. The original members of the club, along with other northwest fly fishing clubs, were active in forming the FFF as we know it today. A glance at the list of Council officers and directors reveals the level of dedication and involvement of the Puget Sound Flyfishers and its members to the sport of fly fishing.

The current members of PSF are proud of their history and will continue to support our fly fishing community through education and conservation.

Youth Conservation

Pink salmon return to the Northwest in 2009

Applications are being accepted from youth, ages 12 to 16, to attend the annual Northwest Youth Conservation and Fly Fishing Academy. The Academy will be held from June 21-27, 2009 at the Gwinwood Conference Center on Hicks Lake in Lacey, Washington where it will educate youth about the importance of natural resource conservation and stewardship, and learn the basics of fly fishing. The week-long event is modeled after the award winning Pennsylvania Rivers Conservation and Fly Fishing Youth Camp.

The curriculum includes lessons in ecology, hydrology, aquatic entomology, invasive species, watersheds, wildlife management, and fish behavior. Participants also learn basic fly fishing skills like casting, tying, fly selection, knots, reading water, water safety, stream-side etiquette, and the "catch and release" ethic.

Twenty-four youth who show an interest in the outdoors and fly fishing will be selected to attend. The Academy is co-educational with acceptance based upon the candidate's written essay indicating his/her desire to attend and the expectations she/he hopes to learn from the camp. Tuition cost, including meals and lodging, for the event is $275. Scholarships may be offered through local TU chapters and FFF fly fishing clubs. Fly fishing rods, reels, and fly tying equipment will be available. The deadline for applications is April 15, 2009.

For further information, visit nwy-cffa.org. To request brochures email Mike Clancy @ 2009academy@earthlink.net or call 360-753-1259 or 253-278-

Ya Gotta Eat To Keep Up Yer Strength

Those who attended the 2008 Fly Fishing Fair (the show formerly known as Conclave) found some good food served up by Cascade Mountain Grilling from their chuckwagon located just outside the building housing all the fly crafters. I'm surprised anyone stayed inside around lunchtime as the smell of those onions on the grill was enough to make my stomach sit up and take notice. This year those who attend can expect more of the same including coffee and breakfast sandwiches as well as hamburgers and hotdogs for lunch.

On Saturday night, we roll out the traditional Ellensburg barbecue buffet catered by the Rodeo City Bar-B-Q. You will be able to enjoy a buffet selection of barbecued pork ribs, tri-tip steak, and chicken with an assortment of side dishes—all for only $35.00 per person for the general public. Show participants can get all that good stuff for only $25.00.

Please make our treasurer (and the caterer) happy by reserving your spot early. Reservation forms for the Saturday night dinner can be found on the website www.washingtoncouncilfff.org.

But wait, there's more. If you order now, you'll also receive the opportunity to bid on tons of really cool auction items as there will be silent auctions closing throughout the day, plus several raffles after dinner.

And if you act now, you can also get a chance to bid on the limited number of oral auction items that go on the block right after dinner is over. To get all in the right frame of mind, Happy Hour at the no-host bar will begin at 6 pm and will continue to serve through dinner.

Clean Out the Clutter

It seemed a good idea at the time—you know, the pontoon boat, the saltwater rod and reel combo, the 2 weight bluegill rod—all that good fly fishing gear that you bought fully intending to use every weekend, but now sits in the garage taking up much needed space.

And your fly tying desk is a shambles with hooks, hair, feathers, necks and tools that could be used by others.

We can help solve your space problem. All you have to do is contact the WSCFFF raffle master and Director at Large, Larry Gibbs (his contact information is on page 3) and Larry will do his best to lighten your load.

Sad News

Our fly fishing community has lost a dear friend. Corda Shirley passed away the week before Christmas after a long illness of cancer. Corda was the wife of Bob Shirley, Past President of our Washington State Council. She retired from the Tacoma School District as Vice-Principal of Mt. Tahoma High School. Corda and Bob were very active with the Puget Sound Fly Fishers in Tacoma, Bob was Past President of the club for many years. They moved last year to their new home in Corpus Christi, Texas. Bob requested that in lieu of flowers a memorial donation be made to the American Cancer Society.

Snoqualmie Watershed Research

WDFW is researching angler catch, effort and demographics on the upper Snoqualmie Watershed, including the North, South and Middle Forks. Please take a few moments to fill out a catch record card and deposit it in one of the many creel boxes located along the stream. For more information on the program, contact Chad Jackson, WDFW District Fisheries Biologist, (425) 775-1311 ext. 113.

Fly of the Season

It don't mean a thing if it ain't got that swing so said Irving Mills with music by Duke Ellington. No clue as to whether either Mills or Ellington ever held a fly rod in hand, but the sentiment of their famous jazz standard can be applied to traditional steelhead patterns like the Green Butt Skunk.

While the jazzmen were creating music, Wes Drain created this pattern for Stillaguamish River steelhead. Drain was a member of the Washington Fly Fishing Club and one of seven club members that bought property and built cabins along the river after World War II. Drain's cabin was just down river from Walt Johnson's and upstream from Al Knudson's place. Fertile ground indeed.

The GBS is a fine example of the sheer lengths that fly crafters will reach to find exactly the right material with which to compose a fly. The wing of the original was a blend of, yes, you guessed it, white and black skunk hair. It's not clear exactly how the hair was gathered, though I recall reading an article some years ago about the travails involved in attempting to salvage fibers from a road-killed mephitis mephitis.

It is also a fine example of a good pattern that swings and when swung properly, catches steelhead. Yes, I know it really is a summer steelhead pattern and this is the January issue, but your editor is quite willing to take liberties with the seasons, if only because he has found this winter weather to be wearisome. Besides, he knows little or nothing about steelheading and truly believes that the nickname "metalheads" is more properly applied to those who persist in fishing for that mythical creature called the winter steelhead.

As with all swing compositions, they change over time and the GBS is no exception. Today the name-sake skunk has been changed to calftail with advant garde tiers ramping up to synthetics. A little improvisation is a good thing, for when completed, it allows the angler to return to the theme.
